REPORTING INSTITUTIONS	REPORTING INSTITUTIONS
The reporting obligation applies to banks in the reporting population for the locational banking statistics survey which are either Swiss-controlled or whose foreign parent company has no banking licence (e.g. holding companies or insurance groups). Liechtenstein banks are treated in the same way as Swiss- controlled banks. Subsidiaries and branches of Liechtenstein banks domiciled in Switzerland have no reporting obligation as they are consolidated by the parent company.	The reporting obligation applies to institutions which are required to report for the BIS locational banking statistics. If an institution is part of a financial group, the highest resident group entity subject to prudential supervision (in Switzerland or the Principality of Liechtenstein) is required to report. If there is a higher group entity abroad that is subject to prudential supervision, the SNB may grant exemptions from the reporting obligation in consultation with the Bank for International Settlements.
